Knoxville Tribune, 18th: "More than a month ago Frederick Morti, a grocery merchant of Memphis, sent his wife and child to the neighborhood of M'Millan Station, ten miles east of Knoxville. They obtained board at Mr. Gid Luttrell's, who lives across the river, one mile from the station. Mrs. Morti was soff-sring with consumption, being in an advanced stage of that disease Mr. Morti remained in Memphis, attending to his business, until about the first of August, when he left and went to join his family at Mr. Luttrell's. He appeared in good health, and so continued until last Thursday evening, the fourteenth, when he complained of being sick. He had a slight chill Friday morning, but continued up, however, waiting on his wife, until Saturday morning at nine o'clock, when he was taken down, and almost at once went into a stupor, becoming utterly oblivious to everything that was gold go n around him. Dr. Sneed, of Strawberry Pialns, was sent for, and came promptly to the bedside of the sick man. After a careful diagnosis of the case, Dr. Sneed, suspecting the disease to be rellow-fever, called Dr. Tadlock, of this city, in consultation. Dr. Tadlock reached the patient at one o'clock Sunday afternoon, and, after consultation with Dr. Sneed, they both agreed that it was a typical case of yellow-fever. Active treatment was entered upon, which seemed at the time Dr. Tadlock left.—four o'clock Sunday evening—to have resulted in some relief to the sufferer, though very little hope was entertained by the physicians of the recovery of the patient. We have no further information in regard to the condition of Mr. Morti. Dr. Tadlock, on his return to the city, sent up to Mr. Luttrell proper disinfectants, with full directions as to their use. He states that the sick man is well cared for. Mr. Luttrell himself becoming his nurse. There is some alarm in the neighborhood, and the people living in the vicinity keep well aloof from the vicinity of the patient's quarte THE ST. LOUIS QUARANTINE COLONY.

THE ST. LOUIS QUARANTINE COLONY.

St. Louis Times-Journal, 18th: "Quarantine discharged two yellow-fever patients yesterday and received two newones. The two discharged were Mrs. Philmot, the Memphis lady taken from the corner of Fourth and Elm streets a couple of weeks ago, and Jerry Berrello, an Italian, taken from the corner of Seventh and Wash streets on the fourth instant. The two new patients were Thomas Jackson, taken from a house in the rear of No. 215 Morgan, street; and Charles Loewbuscher, taken from a house on the corner of Sixth and Walnut streets. Jackson came from Memphis about a week ago. He is a resident of St. Louis, but had been away from the city two or three months looking for employment. The dispensary doctors first heard of his sickness yesterday, and upon examining him they pronounced it a case of yellow-fever. Jackson's family, consisting of a wife and two children, are reported by the police to be in distilute circumstances. Loewbuscher is a single man, thirty years old, and came from Greenville, Misstesippi, on the steamer City of Helena, which arrived here about a week ago. His case was passed upon by Drs. Ford, Kolpenneyer and Robinson, and prenounced to be a fully developed case of yellow-fever. There are now six yellow fever patients and two malarial fever patients at quarantine."

The Desperate Game of Poker That General Forrest Played at Memphis.

Nashville Banner: Several years ago General Forrest visited the city and stopped at old City Lotel. That night several gentlemen called to see him. among them a gentleman now connected with the Banner. The room had been crowded during the early part of the night, and Forrest had received the usual attention bestowed on him. Now, however, he was sitting by himself, and appeared worn and tired out. Our informant, wishing to have a talk with him about himself, sought him, and entered into conversation with him:

I wanted my seven dollars to last as long as I could make it, and so I sat down to the quarter table. We bet on until dinner, and by that time I had won enough to do better; and after we had eat I sat down to the dollar-and-a-half table. Sometimes I won, and then again I'd lose on until nigh about midnight, and then I had better luck; I know'd Mary was setting up and praying; I felt like it and it made me cool. I set my hat down by my side on the floor, and every time I'd win I'd drop the meney in the hat. We played on, and I didn't know how much I'd won. I didn't keep any count, I know'd I was winning. I thought maybe I'd won a hundred dollars or maybe two hundred, but I didn't know. I set there; until day broke, and then we went home. I took my hat up in both hands and mashed it on my head, and went home so without taking it off. When I got to my room there sat Mary in her gown, and the bed wasn't mashed. She'd set up all night walting for me. She seemed tired and anxious, and though she looked mighty hard at me, she didn't say a word. I walked right up to her, and, pulling off my hat with both hands. I emptied it all right in the lap of her gown. And then we set down and counted it."

"How much was there, general?"

"Just fifteen hundred dollars even."

"And that." added the general, as he walked off, "gin me a start."
